Lifelong Learning for All

- Since more than 10 years learning activities for adult learners are supported by European Union and European Commission.
- EU and EC support access and participation in Lifelong Learning for All.
- In order to cope with Europe's ageing population problem in 2000 the Grundtvig Programme was launched.
- Grundtvig aims to provide adults with ways to improve their knowledge and skills, keeping them mentally fit and potentially more employable.
- One of the specific aims of Grundtvig is to ensure that people on the margins of society have access to adult education, especially older people and those who left education without basic qualifications.
- At least 55% of the total funding for Grundtvig goes towards mobility and partnership activities.

Lifelong Learning – what is it all about

[2001 Communication of the European Commission]

“Lifelong learning means all learning activities undertaken throughout life with the aim of improving knowledge, skills and competences within a personal, civic, social and/or employment-related perspective”.

- The Commission states that all learning opportunities and strategies should be equally applicable to older people, and that senior citizens, including older workers, should have opportunities to participate more actively in society and in the labour market.
- This includes the role they can play in intergenerational learning.
- One of the main messages was that traditional educational systems must be transformed to become much more open and flexible, so that learners can follow individual learning pathways, suitable to their needs and interests, and thus genuinely take advantage of opportunities throughout their lives.

LLLE - LEARNING IN LATER LIFE – EUROPE (1)

- LLLE aims to investigate some areas that may have great importance for learning activities in later life, and in which many older people are engaged, such as handcrafts, culture, arts and music.
- During the project the participating organisations will share their experiences and know how in this field, having insights into practice in other countries and collecting good practices.

LLLE - LEARNING IN LATER LIFE

– EUROPE (2)

- The LLLE project enables older people and teachers from different countries, with different cultures and religions to meet and to share their experiences and knowledge.
- The approach to lifelong learning through practices like doing handicrafts, painting or singing for instance brings people together - overcoming cultural or language barriers.
- In this way the project improves exchanges between older people from different countries, with different cultures and religions, promote inter-generational activities, participation in the University of the Third Age, active citizenship and the spirit of European citizenship.
- The LLLE partnership consists of organisations and older people working together in order to establish and expand a network for life long learning in senior age focused on organisations and older people themselves in the field of handicrafts, culture, arts and music.

ForAge - for the later-life learning – building on European experience

- The ForAge EU network is composed of a consortium of partners working together to establish a common platform for the sharing of ideas, research and practice in learning for older people.
- This central point of information will furnish support for the promotion and implementation of learning, advocacy and lobbying and will provide a comprehensive resource for all those engaged in later life learning.

2. The Age Platform Europe, Brussels Belgium
3. BAGSO, Bonn, Germany

Why we are in ForAge? (1)

Lunaria, Roma, Italy „has been involved since ten years with international senior citizens volunteering exchanges and the advantages for Lunaria to be part in this multilateral network include: learning from the partners' experiences, sharing own projects' results, accessing innovative research and practises to improve advocacy for later-life active citizenship towards EU decision-makers.”

AidLearn, Lisbon, Portugal „In the context of an ageing society young and old are more and more faced with new learning needs to cope with the changes of modern life and to keep social contacts.

This unique situation requires learning process focused on ageing as well as on intergenerational links. This is a complete new challenge to adult educators, teachers, trainers, facilitators, as well as to learners from all ages. And the ForAge EU network can support this process!”

50plus Hellas, Athens, Greece „50+Hellas is happy to have the opportunity through Forage to try and form a strong coalition with other agencies in Greece who are concerned with life long learning for older people.”

Cordoba University, Cordoba, Spain „The Universidad de Córdoba (España) after years of teaching and researching experiences with older people (+50) has realized the important role of this people as intergenerational bridge between generations.”

Why we are in ForAge? (2)

Association for Education & Ageing (AEA), UK „The Association for Education is participating in the ForAge network because the objectives of the network - which include the development and dissemination of an international interactive database of knowledge, good practice and shared experience relating to learning in later life - match closely AEA's mission.”

Age Action, Dublin, Ireland „has been nationally involved in Lifelong Learning for many years. During this time, we have learned that learning needs of older people are changing, their reasons for learning are more diverse than ever and we welcome to opportunity to more capably respond to those needs. Forage helps us in this way through the exchange of ideas and good practice. We look forward to gaining access to information of projects more easily using the Forage web-site when the wealth of knowledge and practice begins to build up.”

Finnish Adult Education Association, Helsinki, Finland „By participating in the ForAge network, Finnish Adult Education Association FAEA, representing the network of 340 Finnish institutes offering a vast variety of learning opportunities for adults of all ages across the country, seeks to share experiences, expertise, effort, and learning in order to benefit its own networks and others involved in supporting and developing the possibilities for learning in later life.”

Why we are in ForAge? (3)

The Slovenian Third Age University, Ljubljana, Slovenia

- To get an overview of organisations, formats, methods, activities related to older adult education in Europe. Presently there is a lack of information in this field;
- To exchange information and knowledge concerning studies in the field in Europe;
- To reach out to partners whose core activity is research and education related to later life and the new social roles of older people, which fit into the contemporary times;
- To get engaged in new research and geragogical/intergenerational activities;
- To get inspired.

Comenius University, Bratislava, Slovakia

- Comenius University in Bratislava, Centre for Continuing Education has been providing the study programs, seminars, excursion trips, exercises and additional activities for elderly people since 1990s.
- We offer 32 study programs for almost 2 000 students at our University of the Third Age.

A Society for All Ages – Learning to Live and Learning for Life

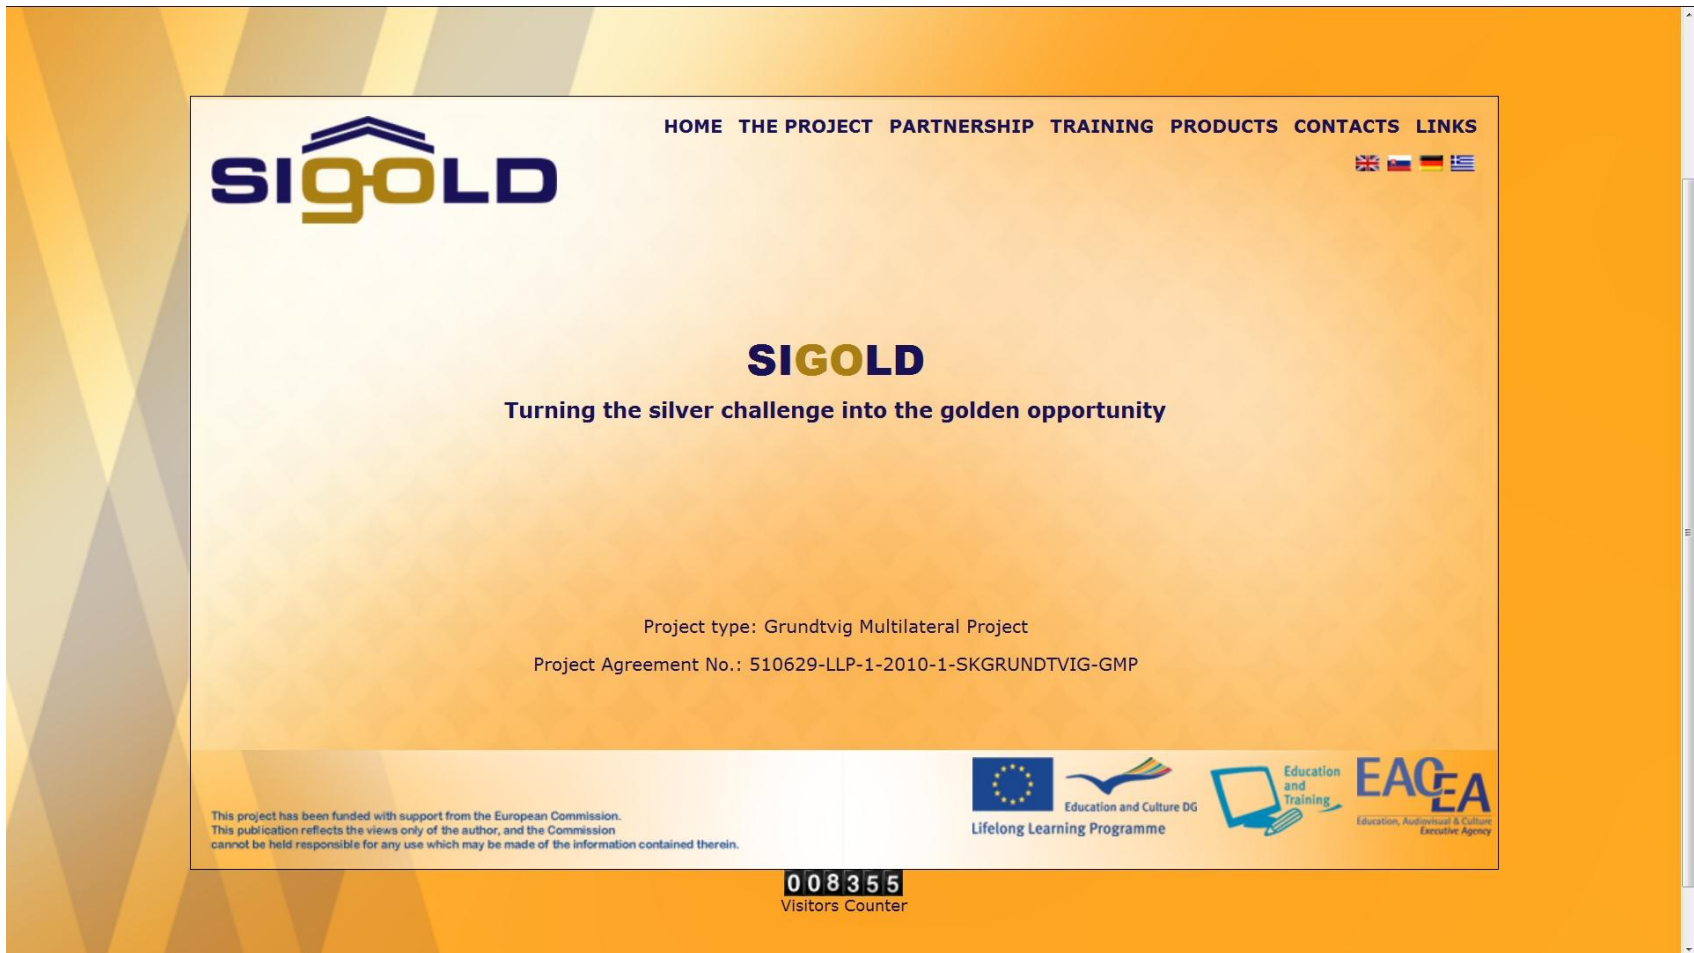

A conference organised by the Cyprus Adult Education Association

8th/9th October, Limassol, Cyprus

- This European conference was facilitated by the ForAge EU network, the European Association for Adult Education, the Cyprus Ministry of Education and Culture, the Cyprus EU Presidency and the European Parliament Office in Cyprus.
- The conference programme focussed on ways in which the learning needs of older and ageing adults might be effectively promoted in the European context.
- Participants from 17 European countries received papers covering policy and practice for later life learning.
- Paradigms and perspectives were debated in workshops where experience from a wide range of agencies and individuals active in the education of older adults ensured in depth discussion.
- Delegates welcomed input from linked sectors that enabled consideration of transferable practice.

The Europe 2020 Strategy

- The Europe 2020 Strategy will be a successor to the Lisbon Strategy which has not achieved its ambitious goals.
- The new document for the horizon of 2020 is focused on a social market economy and define three important strands:
 - economic sustainability,
 - social sustainability,
 - environmental sustainability.
- But NONE of these will be achieved unless all countries and their representatives take into account the growing demographic gap, the increase in older people remaining in employment and the desire for retired older people want to live actively in society.
